Quick Work on Clean-up

Normalcy in traffic conditions in the East Liverpool-Wellsville district was near today, thanks to the business-like manner in which municipal and county employes and Steubenville, East Liverpool and Beaver Valley Traction company workers tackled the clean-up job after Thursday's storm.

Although serious damage was done to the repair job under way in the Lisbon street section of the Lin- air mail rates have been reduced, new air lines are con coln highway. Service Director John W. Moore, Street Commissioner Clyde Goodballet and their co-workers speeded the task ahead of them, with the result that this important link was opened to traffic within 24 hours. And while it will be 10 days or two weeks before the job is finished, the municipal officials deserve a word of praise for their alacrity in eliminating detours, the bane of a motorist's life.

Credit, too, is due Layor W. L. Fogo and Service-Safety Director George B. Imbrie, who personally directed measures to cope with a water famine when a 16-inch supply main was broken at the Little Yellow exhibited. And through a like plan and the adoption of a transfer arrangement, eastbound traffic over the Pennsylvania avenue hill was handled. Even on the Chester division, cut off from street cars which had gone to the East End barns after the night runs and could not return downtown because of the hill road blockade, busses were operated.

licans and Democrats may be in the east this year, as In 400 cities all over the country. These are known as some political wiseacres appear to believe, but the west, aviation, air transport, airport, or landing field commitinsofar as the G. O. P. is concerned, will dominate this party's campaign activities.

Both Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis, the Republican standard-bearers, come out of the west. And now Hubert Work of Colorado, secretary of the interior in Mr. Coolidge's cabinet, has been named ringmaster for the 1928 campaign which the Republicans will soon offer

It was more or less a certainty that Secretary Work, fellow-cabinet member with Mr. Hoover, would become easily as ad the nominee's national chairman. Mr. Work was indefatigable in his efforts to secure Mr. Hoover's nomination, both in the pre-convention campaign and in the heat of the battle itself at Kansas City.

Known everywhere in Republican circles as a master strategist, a worker who never gives up an objective, yet Mr. Work is an entirely new type of man for chairman of the Republican national committee. He is not to be associated in any way with the type of men, who, In the past-at least the past prior to the incumbency of Chairman Butler of Massachusetts- had control of the

Mr. Work, like Mr. Hoover, is a business man, insofar as practical politics is concerned. In private life Mr. Work is a physician, was the founder of Woodcroft host times. pital for nervous ailments in Colorado, and has spent much of his life in alleviating the sufferings of others.

However, it must not be construed from this that he is an amateur in politics. Not by a long shot. Let's see. He was a delegate-at-large to the Republican convention of 1908. He was chairman of the Colorado state Republican central committee, 1912, and was Colorado member of the Republican national committee that year.

From March, 1921, to March, 1922, Mr. Work was first assistant postmaster general, and from March 4, 1922, until March 4, 1923 he was postmaster general. He has been secretary of the interior since March 5, 1923. He holds a lieutenant-colonel's commission in the U. the Campidoglio to receive the poet's crown. A votive S. A. medical corps, is a Mason and a Presbyterian. His home is Pueblo. Colo.

Thus, while Mr. Work is a new type of chief of the Republican national committee, he brings to his job plenty of experience in practical politics, as well as wealth of experience as a startegist, professional man and veteran campaigner among business men and others. By the very nature of his work as secretary of the interior in Mr. Coolidge's cabinet, he is acquainted with the nation's needs and what it will take to more solidly intrench the Hoover-Curtis team in the good graces of the electorate. It may be said-and will very likely be unanimously agreed before the end of the campaign-that Mr. Hoover and Mr. Curtis made a wise choice of national chairman and campaign manager.

Changeable Nomenclature. When revolution put Russia on th skids St. Petersburg became Petrograd. Then came bolshevism on red wings and Petrograd overnight turned into Leningrad.

For sentimental reasons Christiania capital of Norway, was renamed Oslo in 1925.

Now the victorious Nationalists having made a military capture of the capital, have opened an orthgraphical attack on it. Peking is to be known henceforth as Pei Ping. As in the case of St. Petersburg, Peking's loss of identity is coincidental with her loss of prestige as national capital.

Whether it is Peking or Pei Ping disturbs us not at all. Only the column poets will see importance in the incident. We warn the revolutionists, however, against monkeying with American municipal names. would this country be without its Conshohockens, its Skaneateleses and its Wagon Mounds? - Cleveland Plain

Once Overs

That Chip on Your Shoulder. Have the years you have spent in metropolis robbed you of the fruit of your early training in courtesy and kindness? When you leave your boarding place you are in a beligerent mood. Especially in the morning you seem almost to seek disagreeable conditions for altercations.

Do you actually get a kick out of this troublesome spirit? You act as if you would be disap-pointed if someone did not attempt to knock teh chip off your shoulders. You are primed and ready in the morning, snappy toward those who crowd you and jostle you in your progress. You seem to get satisfaction from calling down some person whom you think has usurped certain of your rights. Of course, the only way to get ahead is to be able to stand for your rights as occasion demands.

But to be eternally forcing such tactics to the fore, is to stamp you as one of the lesser lights, for the big man does not use his fighting gard at all times. Repressed forces are greater when called out by necessity.

HOUSTON, Tex., June 25 .- Mrs. Edith Bolling Wilson, widow of the World war president, may become the Joan of Arc of the Democratic convention should internal strife threaten success of the party's political war-

She stood out today in the convention throngs as an exponent of hard mony and a united front in the No-vember offensive.

Having received the greatest popus ar acclaim of any incoming notable Mrs. Wilson apparently was in position to wield great power over con-ending forces. The spirit of Woodrow Wilson, al-

constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, died and exercise tonstipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Or next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr Caldwell always was in favor of getling as close to nature as possible hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate sys tem and is not a habit forming pre paration. Syrup Pepsin is pleasanttasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect. Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of TLE.

the family in constipation, biliousness, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, nad observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you

Ahead by Six Games

Threaten to Make Runaway Race in National.

By Les Conklin.

NEW YORK, June 25.—With a sixgame lead over the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs, who are tied for second place, the St Louis Cardinals are threatening to make a runaway race of it in the Na-tional league scramble, just as the Yankees are doing in the American eague. The Cards have won six of and Giants were unable to break even

The Pirates have copped four of their last six games, but Ray Kremer, one of their star boxmen, was knocked out by the Cubs yesterday. The Phil-lies, who have won 10 of their last 13. and Brooklyn, with five wins in seven starts, are due to cause the Giants considerable trouble.

High lights of yesterday's games

Babe Ruth smacked his 28th homer and is 17 games ahead of his last year's record.

No Boston player reached third when George Pipgras of the Yanks when George Pipgras of the Yanks blanked the Red Sox. 4 to 0, and no Giant got as far as the hot corner as Jess Petty of Brooklyn whitewashed New York, 2 to 0. Rivals Scheduled for Two-game Series This Week; Opener at Nicholson Field Tuesday; Clash Here Thursday.

Wellsville City league pace setters this week face their greatest test in their efforts to land the league bunting for the opening half of the season's campaign. The Wellsville and Turk Nash clubs | C. Wagner are scheduled to clash in a series of Edwards, 1b two games this week, one on the Wellsville lot, and one on the Turk G. Wagner, mf Nash diamond, and the results of Tolbert, 2b these two games doubtlessly will determine the championship for the half. Tomorrow night the flag rivals go into action at Nicholson Field, Wellsville, and the victor in the inaugural scrap of the series naturally will draw the edge. On Thursday night they scrap again, this time at Columbian park. As a result of the closeness of the two teams, it is very likely that a hy in nin number of postponed contests will have to be played off to settle the issue. Wellsville has two yet to play in addition to this wek's games.

Turk Nash has played 12 of its first half games and, besides the two with In the event that both Turk Nash and Wellsville loses two more games apiece before the thing is settled, then K. T. K. has a chance to get in on the wrangle. The Katies have lost six but have 10 unplayed games on their schedule. Wellsville remained at the top Sat urday by conquering the Katies, 22 to 11, the game setting a new scoring record for the season. In the last two games at Wellsville, a total of 62 runs have been made, Newell winning a 15-14 decision Friday. K. T. K. AB. R. H. P. A. E K. T. K.

The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle Against Temptations

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

A few times she had felt twinges of this; nothing more than questions rising, when she walked on the River Road as to why some should have so much and others, like herself, so little.

Now the questions centered about Coles, tempting her. He could make love to her, ask her to marry him, and dash it all away when he found she was not the Leiress he had thought her.

How did he know she wasn't madly in love with him, breaking her heart as Stella had broken hers when Skeets threw her over? Why did men like Coles and Skeets have the right to do this to girls not of their

Bitterness oppressed her; in that moment she was very near to slipping into the misanthropy that had dominated and victimized Steve Day. But she thought, all at once, of Frances Haiden. Frances was in a way of the group which would have drawn her father's ire. Yet Frances had befriended her always, she could have been no kinder nor more disinterested had Emily been her sister. That did not ook like class-indifference.

And Wentworth Rossiter coming to offer help when her father died, actually proposing to pension her mother thought they had no claim on him. Would he have done that had he been the sort of man her father considered

Why, of course not! And, since she knew two so fine as these she'd not grow cynical because another, Kingdon Coles, was what he was. She laughed all at once, a free, merry sound, and began to race with Raggedy along the cote d'or. Kingdon Coles How lucky she was—how very lucky! Sup-posing she had married him before she found out— Coles who would love his wife and her fortune equally well!

There was a name for girls who did such things; it would fit him all right she gussed maybe. Gold-digger. A male gold-digger. And she might have married him. "Gee, dog," she called, happily. "We're the lucky ones, you and I!"

CHAPTER 41.

Emily was astonished at how little she missed Kingdon Coles.

"So I didn't even like him much," she told herself "I was flattered, maybe. And that would be a sad thing to build a marriage on-vanity-even if he had been different. I suppose everything that happens is for the

Still the experience coming to her through him was not a pleasant one. She accepted it and was grateful but it left her rather subdued. She felt, someway, as if she had grown up suddenly because of it.

Election day drew near and feeling ran high in Lyall but she watched it as one who stands upon a bank looks at the current of a turbulent river. Though Kitten went here and there to hear campaign speeches, Emily couldn't stir her own interest. Once when she had an errand at the Yacht Club and Kent was making an address in the ball-room she didn't even stop to listen.

And she wouldn't vote. "It's your duty, my dear," Frances told her. "Every citizen owes that much to the government."

"One vote won't make any difference. Besides it doesn't matter much who gets in, does it?"

Election night the town went wild. There was a pa rade in which women joined with horns and ton pans and torches. They marched up and down the River Roard and out Main Street and Emily heard their shouts and saw the red, exciting lights of their flares far down the hill. But she went to bed early without telephoning for the returns. It occurred to her, as she stood before the mirror, that she was growing rather thin. And her cheeks were not as pink as they had been.

She heard, in the morning, that Kent was elected. A tingle shot through her in spite of her lassitude. "He deserves everything," she told herself. "No one so fine."

But she did not clip the interview in which he thanked the voters. She read it, smiling and proud, but the thought of cutting it from the newspaper did not, for some reason move her. Perhaps the Kingdon Coles episode mad eher feel that she must put away some of her enthusiasms. At any rate she wrapped up the Japanese box that evening, and stored it in the attic, together with the blue dress of sad memory and the now outdated calendars Frances had given her.

In the interview Kent was quoted saying things about a "housecleaning policy." The article in the Item declared that twenty or more speakeasies in the county, ranging all the way from informal bars at the back of obscure business places to elaborate road-houses, musprepare to close.

Frances smiled at this. "It looks as if the Judge had created a Frankenstein," she remarked.

Once again snow lay, like a mantle of ermine, upon Lyall. For a brief time the town awoke to color as merchants hung their stores with green and red lights of many hues were strung through Main street.

Every window, in The Hill as on the River Road, held an evergreen wreath and candles were set ablaze to illumine the way of the new-born Christ child.

Waifs flitted from street to street, their voices blending graciously in "Silent Night." And all the bells flung ecstasy into the Christmas sky.

The holiday was celebrated quietly in the Day home.

Greens carried to the grave up the hill; little fancy cakes and Jasmine tea; mysterious packages tied with bright ribbon rassed about, opened with exclamations of delight.

Frances invited Emily to a party in the evening but she declined. She had no wish to go out these days. Shortly it was the first of the year and the papers began to refer to the new District Attorney, Mr. Kent Rossiter. Emily pored over the columns.

Kent, it appeared, had started right out to make good on his promise of political house-cleaning. He began by directing a raid on a road-house up the State Highway one night.

This resulted in the arrest of the proprietor and the place's closed doors. And in a statement which the Item printed with a flourish he declared it to be only the beginning.

Presently the Star commenced to refer to him as "Galahad." Or, more often, as "Gal" Rossiter.

Meditating upon this in an idle hour at the shop, Emily saw the two who had talked so forcefully to the Judge the day the Item first proposed Kent for office meet and pass up the stairs across the street. "Who are they, Frances?"

"Henchmen. I suppose they're worried now the Frank enstein shows signs of turning." "You mean about the roadhouse? Didn't they want it closed?"

Frances looked at her queerly and didn't answer. Marty wandered over later and leaned his elbows on a bolt of yellow silk, gazing at it in a puzzled way. Emily ventured to mention the raid.

"It must have been exciting. Kent is doing just what he promised. "And riding for a fall. There's a limit to the grand-stand stuff." Still young, Marty was; he had yet to learn silence. "But the District Attorney is expected to enforce the law, isn't he?" "So's your Aunt Kate." With that he drifted away, le. ing her thoughtful. Kent had done what was right and now Marty, speak ing for the ring, said he was "riding for a fall." Kent had declared he was going on in the way he had begun and they were determined he should not. She could not guess at the reason behind this; she was completely ignorant of political intrigue. But she was discerning enough to recognize treachery and honest enough to feel outraged.

Would Kent know about it? Probably he trusted these men who were ready to play him false.

I. seemed to her Kent should be warned. She might write him a note. A bold thing, writing to him, but she could do that. (To Be Continued).

JOHNNY HINES AT AMERICAN

Johnny Hines, famous for his com edy screen characterizations, is said to surpass all previous performances in "Chinatown Charlie," his latest First National Picture, produced by C. C. Burr, at the American theater today.

In "Chinatown Charlie," which is from the pen of the prolific playwright, Owen Davis, the comedian is said to give an exceedingly realistic interpretation of a guide on a New York sight-seeing bus, a wax dummy, a Chinese mandarin, and a

The last is not the least, for in order to win the hand of the heroine portrayed by Louise Lorraine, Johnny puts up some fights worthy of a west ern villain, and performs the thrilling stunt of walking across a human bridge-the bodies of five acrobats swung together from a second-story darin's palace, twenty-five feet across the street.

The comedian is assisted in this riot of fun by Louise Lorraine, Anna May Wong, Edna May, Sojin, Scoeter Lowry, Harry Gribbon, Fred Kohler, George Kuwa, Jack Carlyle, Jack Burdette, Betty Egan, Joy Lynn, and a score of other funmakers. Charles Hines directed the offering.

A READER: I haven't the faintest idea who originated the idea, Reader It probably comes from the fact that man is the protector of woman, there fore, should be taller and stronger However, this is a very foolish no tion; as some of the happiest married people I know are in the same posi tion as you, that is the husband is shorter than the wife. It's just a ques ion of pride, I suppose, but I surely wouldn't let anything like that stop me if I cared for anyone.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am intensely in love with my Eng-lish instructor, a unique individual, highly educated and cultured. He is strikingly handsome, tall and athletic-looking. I am in a tenth-grade class which he teaches. I love him! Please advise me. I cannot get him out of my mind.

BLUE EYES. BLUE EYES: Don't be a silly child, Blue Eyes. There is plenty of time for you to think of love. To your teacher you are just one of his pupils and that's that! Every girl in the world has at some time or other a "crush" on one of her teachers, and after she days when it is of utmost importance grows up she laughs at herself. And

DEMS TO ATTACK TWO-THIRDS RULE

HOUSTON, Texas, June 25.-Au thoritative information reached the Brennan camp today that a move ment will be launched to abolish the two-thirds and the unit rules, as soon as the nominations are made. The resolution calling for the repeal of the traditional Demo cratic convention rules, will eman ate from the Ohio delegation.

The Al Smith forces are expect ed to get behind it generally and are reported to have enough to put it through, once the governor's nomination is over. The Illinois group will support the plan, it was learned, on good authority, but an effort is being made to quiet the sponsors until after the Smith vicory march is completed.

unrepresented at the convention. The contestants will appear before the cr dential committee merely as citizens and do not hold credentials from an even "rump" state convention. They will ask to be seated, however, on the ground that the national con-vention is the sole judge of its membership, and should accept them rather than delegates holding illegal credentials "saturated with fraud."
